

Principal's News

Dear Parents,

On Monday, we had a wonderful Feast Day Mass (thank you to Fr Michael and 6BM for leading this) and THE BEST weather for our Colour Run. Sometimes, it all works out perfectly, and it did on this day, with 25 degrees being just right for this event. The students had a ball with the water and dye changing their t-shirts to colourful artworks! We had a great turn out of parents who volunteered to spray the water and dye, and the event was well led and coordinated by Michelle Don Paul, and members of the PFA Committee.

How amazing to raise over $5000 from this one event! The funds will be put towards the re-design and expansion of the Junior sandpit area, with the addition of shade. Thanks to everyone for their participation and support!

CYBER SAFETY SESSIONS FOR YEARS 5 AND 6

NEXT Wednesday, 20 November, from 6.30-7.45pm in the GECCO, Kate Wilde from The Workshop, will share with parents the types of conversations to be had to keep young people safe online. Even with new changes to age limits, guidance and expectations need to be in place so that young people are safe in their interactions and aware of the consequences of their choices when online.

The Year 5 and 6 students will participate in three workshops of an hour each with Kate over the next three Fridays. Please engage with your child following these to unpack the content covered on those days. Being aware and setting boundaries is a parent's job.

2025 ORIENTATION SESSIONS

The 2025 Prep students visited on Tuesday for their second Orientation Session. They spent some time in the Prep rooms and mixing with each other. The parents were altogether in the GECCO and heard some great messages about Positive Behaviours for Learning (PBL) and our Parking plans before and after school.

At the third and final session on Wednesday 20 November from 9.30-10.30am, the students will find out their class teacher/s for 2025.

It has been lovely to see how quickly the children have settled as they visited, and their Year Six Buddies will be a HUGE help with this at the start of the year too.

ABC MUSIC PERFORMANCE

On Thursday 21 November, and Friday 22 November the students who learn a musical instrument at St Martin's with the ABC Teachers, will hold their Concert from 2-3.10pm in the GECCO. We know their parents are looking forward to a great show!

'SMOT SPOT' - YOUR OWN PARKING SPOT!

Wouldn't it be great to have a PRIME POSITION in the bottom yard carpark for Pick up?! You could drive in knowing it is there, just for you! How fabulous to be close to the back gate once your children have arrived at the door. Please feel free to purchase multiple tickets for the chance to win this spot! Tickets are available through the PFA with the links also found in this Newsletter. Many thanks for your support!

NOTE: IF YOU ATTEND THE PFA AGM on Wednesday 27 November, you will receive a FREE ticket to be entered into the draw.

CAROLS NIGHT

On Monday 9 December, our Carols Night will be held on the bottom yard. Please arrive at 5.30pm for a 5.45pm start, until approximately 7.15-7.30pm. Please note that, as children are in attendance, this is an alcohol free event. Further information can be found in this Newsletter.

Soft Eyes

I have a challenge for you. Try to feel angry...but make your eyes soft and kind.

It's the psychological equivalent of patting your head, rubbing your belly, hopping on one leg, and sticking your tongue in and out—all at once. Perhaps it's harder. They're fundamentally incompatible. I don't think you can do both.

One of the best ways I've found to help parents guide their children successfully—particularly at those tense times when they're about to crack—is to practise “soft eyes”.

“Soft eyes” is not a term you'll find in traditional parenting literature, but it has deep psychological and neurological roots. It serves as a powerful tool for emotional regulation—not just for you but also for your child.

How Soft Eyes Help Your Child

When your child is stressed or anxious, seeing your soft eyes can send a reassuring message. Their brain's mirror neurons pick up on your calm demeanour, signalling that the environment is safe. Your gentle gaze can help them feel loved and understood, even amidst their worries.

Regulating Your Emotions

Practising soft eyes also helps you manage your own emotional responses. In high-stress situations, it can be easy to react with anger or frustration. However, adopting soft eyes allows you to engage in two important emotional regulation strategies: emotional suppression and reappraisal.

Emotional Suppression

This involves holding back your emotional responses. For example, when your kids are fighting, you might want to explode but instead maintain your calm. While this can prevent an escalation, habitual suppressors experience impacts on wellbeing such as increased levels of depressive symptoms, less life satisfaction, and poorer social functioning.

Reappraisal

This is the process of changing how you interpret a situation to alter its emotional impact. When you choose to see things from your child's perspective or frame the moment in a broader context, you activate your prefrontal cortex early on, which helps calm your emotions. This makes it easier to maintain a gentle demeanour.

Hope Builders

Equipping Our Kids to Thrive in a Challenging World

Take a look at the clickbait headlines of our major news outlets and consider the words you see pop up most. Words like “grim”, “brutal”, “chilling”. They're carefully designed to evoke anxiety.

And they're working.

Mental health challenges are at unprecedented levels among our children. Recent research published by the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) shows that anxiety, depression, and self-harm are on the rise. Around 40% of girls and 20% of boys have anxiety. (That's about 8 girls and 4 boys in every school classroom around the country.) Diagnoses are climbing for children at younger ages. ADHD and autism diagnosis is also on the up.

The pressures of school, social media, and an uncertain future are taking their toll. Throw in political instability, a middle-Eastern war, a Russian/Ukrainian war, and economic pain with high interest rates and inflationary pressure... and it's a lot.

These are big issues. Some research, however, shows that often it's the multitude of small issues that accrue until our kids are total stressballs, rather than the big stuff. That is, they're probably more worried about their best friend forgiving them for that dumb thing they said yesterday, or they're stressed about the speech they have to give in class, or that weird interaction they had with a new “friend” on Roblox more than they're worried about climate change and wars. The small things are immediate and close. The big things are often more abstract and distant.

In reality, it's likely both that are contributing to anxiety and stress in kids.

But amid these challenges, there's a powerful tool we can equip our kids with; one that inoculates kids against anxiety, takes down depression, and softens stress.

That tool is hope.

Hope, in the psychological sense, isn't just wishful thinking. It's not the “Geez, I hope we can pay the grocery bill this week” thinking (for adults) or “Hey, I hope that the kids are nice to me at school today” thinking (for kids). Instead, hope has three key components:

Goals: Having clear goals provides direction and purpose.

Pathways: Believing in one's ability to find multiple routes to achieve those goals, even when faced with obstacles.

Agency: Having the confidence and self-belief to navigate those pathways and overcome challenges.

Think of it like this: hope is the internal GPS that guides our kids towards a brighter future, even when the road gets bumpy. It's the belief that they have the power to steer their own course, navigate detours, and ultimately reach their destination.

And our job is to be hope builders.

Why Repeating Yourself Doesn't Work

And What to Do Because Repeating Yourself Doesn't Work

“Put on your shoes.” “Your shoes.” “Put on your shoes!”

“I SAID PUT ON YOUR SHOES!”

It's a familiar scene - repeated one way or another most days in most homes. That slow simmer of frustration when a simple request seems to vanish into the ether, met with the selective deafness that only a child can truly master.

It's easy to assume they're deliberately ignoring us, their minds mysteriously attuned to the siren call of “ice cream” or “treats” while remaining impervious to any mention of footwear, schoolbags, lunchboxes, or the wet towel on the carpet.

But before we write them off as defiant or inattentive, let's consider a different perspective. What if the communication breakdown isn't entirely their fault? What if we, as parents, are inadvertently contributing to the disconnect?

Most of us see communication as a simple process:

1. We say it. We keep it short and simple so it's easy to understand.
2. They hear it. (And then they act).

But communication, especially with children, is far more nuanced.

Imagine this: your request to “put on your shoes” is just the opening move. Your child then needs to decode your message, understand what you're asking, and provide feedback - a nod, a verbal response, or the actual act of moving towards those elusive shoes. And we, in turn, need to be attuned to their feedback, ensuring our message has landed as intended.

Perhaps the bigger issue is this: just because we did send the message and it was received, there are no guarantees that our child will act. Timing matters. What they're doing, how they're feeling, and what their agenda is are all factors that impact whether they act, regardless of how loud and clear the message was.

If your child is “not listening” it's time to shift strategy and engage in a more mindful, collaborative approach to communication.

Here's how to transform those frustrating moments into opportunities for connection:

1. Make sure you have their attention before you start speaking. This might (but doesn't have to) involve:

- A personalised invitation: Say their name gently but firmly, signaling that you're about to say something important.
- Pressing pause: Give them a moment to disengage from their current activity and shift their focus to you. Eye contact is the signal you need to know they're connected to you.
- A gentle touch: A light hand (or tap) on the shoulder can be a powerful way to draw their attention without startling them.

WHAT IS THUNDERSTORM ASTHMA?

Epidemic Thunderstorm Asthma is the phenomenon where a large number of people develop asthma symptoms over a short period of time. It is thought to be triggered by an uncommon combination of high pollen levels and a certain type of thunderstorm.

This occurs when pollen grains from grasses get swept up in the wind and carried for long distances. Just before the storm, some burst open and release tiny particles that are concentrated in the wind, and blown down to the ground, where people can breathe them in. They are small enough to go deep into the lungs and can trigger asthma.

These thunderstorm asthma events don't occur every year but when they do, they can happen during the grass pollen season in south-east Australia. The grass pollen season varies across Australia however in south-east Australia it is typically from October through December.

WHO IS AT RISK OF THUNDERSTORM ASTHMA?

Those at increased risk of Epidemic Thunderstorm Asthma include:

- People with asthma
- People with a past history of asthma
- Those with undiagnosed asthma
- People with seasonal hay fever who have not ever had asthma

Having both asthma and hay fever and poor control of asthma increases the risk further.

Managing your asthma and hay fever well means:

- Knowing the symptoms of hay fever and asthma
- Having the right plan and medications in place to best handle your symptoms before pollen season starts

THIS MEANS TAKING THE FOLLOWING ACTIONS:

If you think you might have symptoms of asthma or hay fever or if you experience wheezing or coughing with your hay fever

See your doctor and get these symptoms checked. They will give you a proper diagnosis, help you get an asthma or hay fever Action Plan in place and make sure you have the right medication.

If you know you have asthma or hay fever

If you currently have asthma, you should have regular reviews with your doctor about your asthma to ensure that you have the right medication and that you have good control of your asthma.

It is also important that you have a written Asthma Action Plan and that you see your doctor to ensure that it includes advice for Epidemic Thunderstorm Asthma.

Always carry your reliever medication with you - this is your emergency Asthma First Aid medication.

If you experience seasonal hay fever, see your doctor or pharmacist about your hay fever care and how you should manage the risk of Epidemic Thunderstorm Asthma, including the need for having reliever medication appropriately available during the pollen season.

Know the Asthma First Aid steps

It's important for everyone to know the symptoms of asthma and what to do if someone is having an asthma attack.

Never ignore asthma symptoms like breathlessness, wheezing and tightness in the chest

Start Asthma First Aid immediately and call Triple Zero (000) for help if symptoms do not get any better or if they start to get worse.

Sign up for alerts about high pollen days in your state and territory

It's best to avoid being outside during thunderstorms in the grass pollen season - especially in the wind gusts that come before the storm. Stay inside and close your doors and windows.

For more information about thunderstorm asthma and how you can be prepared, visit asthma.org.au/about-asthma/triggers

HELPFUL INFORMATION FOR ASTHMA FIRST AID

If a person's asthma suddenly gets worse

If a person's asthma suddenly gets worse or you are concerned, call for emergency assistance - Dial Triple Zero (000) immediately.

Tell the operator a person is having an asthma attack.

If you are in a remote area

In remote areas, after dialing for emergency assistance and commencing Asthma First Aid, seek medical advice as available, for example, a local community nurse or health clinic.

If you don't know whether the person has asthma

If the person is finding it hard to breathe and you are not sure if it is asthma, call emergency assistance - Dial Triple Zero (000) immediately and follow the Asthma First Aid steps.

Giving blue/grey reliever medication to someone who does not have asthma is unlikely to harm them.

Follow up

If you have had an asthma flare-up or attack, it is important to have your asthma reviewed by your doctor.

MenAlive Invitation

Dear fathers, grandfathers and men of St Martins Primary School and the School community

I would like to invite you to our MenALIVE event. A MenAlive weekend is coming to St Martin's Parish ROSANNA on 16 and 17 November. It is for all fathers, grandfathers and adult men of the Parish, the School and men from our neighbouring Parishes and Schools are very welcome.

What is MenALIVE?

MenALIVE is an Australian Catholic lay men's ministry that was founded over 20 years ago. It encourages men to practice a deeper spiritual life of daily scripture and prayer and have regular fellowship with other men in the parish community. <https://www.menalivevic.au/>

During menALIVE men's weekend, the MenALIVE team will share about their lives, the challenges they face, and the hope that they have in seeking to walk this journey with God. Perhaps the most important thing the weekend offers is space for the men to reflect, and opportunities to share with one another about themselves and their lives. There are testimonies on the MenALIVE website from those who have attended these weekends and what it means to them as a participant. Here's a direct link to one of them: <https://youtu.be/GtsbOqgyTwk>

Come and join other men for this weekend experience. This will be a day and a half of challenge and fulfillment in God's purpose for you and for the other men – for you, for your families, for your world.

What Do You Need to Do?

Start by showing your commitment by registering and then, by praying for our life-focused and maybe life-changing event.

- This involves all of us. It starts with those attending the weekend.
- Anyone who wishes to help grow this vision within the St Martin's or a neighbouring Parish or School are asked to contact one of the St Martin's organisers who are mentioned in the brochure. The more we have the easier it will be for those helping to make this a special weekend for all who can make it.
- For those who cannot come and cannot directly get involved, would you all pray for the weekend: Pray that workers would be brought in to help with the big harvest.

Above all, it is important to promote this to your friends and family. We all know someone who could be invited. The more who come the wider the benefits will be for all of us. There is an excitement in that by building men up, families and the community will benefit sustainably. God will grow in men's hearts.

Register soon and pray for the weekend's success in Jesus' name. Amen.

The purpose of menALIVE is to bring men together, to renew their faith in God and to encourage them to become an active force within the Church.

Through a variety of events and programs, men are invited to explore what God would want for their lives and how they might come to experience the fullness of life that God wants for us all.

God is glorified when men are fully alive
St Irenaeus

The menALIVE Men's Weekend is an opportunity for men to explore what makes them feel fully alive.

During the weekend, the menALIVE team will share about their lives, the challenges they face and the hope they have discovered in seeking to walk this journey with God.

Perhaps the most important thing the weekend offers is space for men to reflect and opportunities to share with one another about themselves and their lives.

The experience of the weekend is powerful and dynamic and many men are inspired and encouraged with a new sense of purpose and mission.

The weekend is organised by men in your local community and conducted by an experienced team of menALIVE leaders. It is suitable for all men from 18 years of age.

33rd SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME YEAR B 16TH & 17TH NOVEMBER 2024

Two New Auxiliary Bishops Appointed for Melbourne As we prepare to enter a year of Jubilee for the Church, it is with great joy that the Archdiocese shares the news of Pope Francis' appointment of two new Auxiliary Bishops for Melbourne – Reverend Father Thinh Nguyen and Reverend Father Rene Ramirez RCJ. Most Rev Peter A Comensoli, Archbishop of Melbourne said; "I am deeply grateful to the Holy Father for this gift and blessing to our Archdiocese." "The Melbourne Archdiocese is the largest in Oceania, and we have waited a long time to have our full complement of Auxiliary Bishops to assist in ministering to God's people. "Both Fr Nguyen and Fr Ramirez are men who have a heart for the Gospel and a missionary energy for God's people," said the Archbishop. "They are well-known to the Melbourne Archdiocese, and have already made valuable contributions to the life of the local Church. I know that each will continue to share their distinctive gifts and passionate commitment to our faith communities in the years to come. "I ask for your prayers as they begin this new journey in their ministerial lives."

THANK YOU VERY MUCH: Thanks to our young people in our Parish Group and their families for their support in running the BBQ and cake stall last weekend. The cake stall raised $953! Thanks to those who donated baked goods and to all who bought them on the day. Our celebration of our Patron Saint created community and joy!

What's been happening...

Hi all!

The past few weeks have been jam packed with many fun activities we've been having so much fun! We have made sweet treats in both the mornings and afternoons making pancakes, and Oreo spiders perfect for Halloween!

We have continued to play plenty of group games together in both the morning and afternoon and have even started to make our way outside to play a few of the games in the sunshine!

We have become very crafty recently, creating toilet roll mummies for Halloween, poppies for Remembrance Day, plenty of water colour painting and painting different squishy toys for the children to take home. It has been wonderful to see how each of the children take on the craft and what they do to make it their own.

Recently our new favorite game to play has been battleship. There has been a line up in the mornings for children to play against each other, it's great to see everyone give it a go and get involved in playing a game a lot of them have never played before.

Our weekly competitions have been a hit, with the most recent ones being designing our own neighborhood and our own pair of odd socks. Soon we will be creating some summery and Christmas competitions and activities as we move towards summer and the festive season.

We can't wait to show you what's to come!
